

About Taking Oaths, Promises to the Gods & Succubi/Incubi

Over the years it's important to look back and reflect. There is a popular subject which commonly occurs which is the subject of "oaths". People who have made errors and so on, do take "oaths" to say that they will not err again, or might take oaths out of the blue. This also includes oaths about Succubi or Incubi, or even oaths that promise specific things to Satan.

Oaths are very holy and important sacraments and should never be taken in vain. When one is not very much spiritually developed, or when one feels shaky or uncertain, an oath can be as good as nothing. Oaths clearly require to be maintained, and should be taken very seriously. The Gods do respect people that keep their oaths and try to stay on the straight path, since they understand fully how difficult it can be to hold things together.

With the passing of time I have seen many people who have had all the good predisposition and all the good heart to be very prominent and great Spiritual Satanists and followers of the Gods. Actually what I do everyday is show ultimate faith work in that regard.

Of course, as we have it, there are moments in our life where we have clear epiphanies, such as seeing what we are to do for the Gods or how important this path is. But due to human nature, these moments can be fleeting. Strong memory and being resolute is required in this path.

As we can understand, the nature of oaths is to use one's word to certify for what one will do in an unwavering manner. In Spiritual Satanism and in front of the Gods, the oaths should be kept at a minimal. Christians and other fools constantly "take the name of the Lord in vain", which they always do.

This advice is from Egyptian teachings and as with everything stolen from the Pagans. One metric of this "Not taking the name in vain" is to not invoke the Demons for no reason, and on the other end, to not swear solemn oaths for no reason. All of this is stolen and perverted into the enemy system, and we know the results for Christurds, Muslims and Jews alike.

"God help me find my lost car keys!", "Only God can judge me!" and other nonsense constantly flies out of their mouth all the time. Many Christians and others in full knowledge that their oaths are as good as non-existent, abuse this constantly in courts of law and everywhere else, since they know that the "God" they swear upon does not exist.

There is one fundamental difference here. Our Gods DO exist.

The reason they take the names of their "deities" in vain is because they are very little self aware, and because their "oaths" and "sacraments" do not matter whatsoever since they are built on top of non-existent deities. These "oaths" and "agreements" can be reversed every other day, and they can forget their "God" as they forget everything all the time. The "Loyalty" of the average Christian towards their own Gods is as long as until a woman bends over in front of them, or when a big cheeseburger appears and their "holy diet" is about to get instantly violated.

In other words, one must not behave like a Christian and take the names of the Gods in vain, let alone when one knows that they will almost certainly violate what they have said they wouldn't do.

Now, in Spiritual Satanism, exactly because Oaths, sacraments, Rituals and other things are taken very seriously, they are also seen as a two sided bond. I will mention an example so you can understand how it is when you make "Oaths" or "Agreements" with Demons but you cannot follow through because you are naive or still do not understand much yet, which is very common when you have recently dedicated and you have outpouring emotions.

Many many years ago I made an agreement with the Goddess Maat because I was fascinated by her, to guide me to the Great Work and help me become a God. I was starstruck when I saw her [I still am...]. Of course, that would never be a negative thing, as one can see and therefore that is not an example of an oath one has trespassed. Yet, as years passed Maat herself related to me that this exists in Spiritual Satanism by default, and that this was not necessary in the first place. Despite of anything, a great bond was created. That is an example of an "agreement" with a Demon going very well.

Our Gods almost never ever punish anyone for taking place in such faults. The reasons for this are explained in the early texts of our culture, one of them being the Odyssey. There, it's explained how the power of oaths is very great and valid, but that the Gods are aware that humans might not be able to follow through with their oaths.

As a result, it's brave and commendable to take an oath, but it's the going that keeps everything going. It's a pain to fail, but a glory to succeed at not failing. Yet due to human nature, predisposition to failing is very common, while unwavering word is something that is commonly observed on the Gods.

The most honorable thing one can do in their lives, is to uphold serious and meaningful oaths that they take in mouth and in paper. Clearly, maintaining these does come at a price, facing adversity, holding strong and so on. I have been severely tested for these and still I am everyday for mine.

I have lost track of times where people say stuff like "I swear to..." that ... insert topic here such as: "I will be meditating daily from now on!". Well, swearing or not swearing a literally pointless heavy oath will not do more in that regard than simply doing what you want to do. In the eyes of the Gods, the outcome will matter as the most important thing.

On the other hand, making a serious promise [not an oath] can be desirable and will raise your accountability and respect that you receive from the Gods if you follow this through. But things as serious as oaths should be treated with the highest care as their violation can be sacrilegious and a product of utmost blasphemy.

An example here further is infatuation. When you meet two people who are crazy in love, they will swear by all stars and luminaries that they will be together forever. Yet, as situations come against them that might try to make them part, it's common that people might stand beneath the power to fix certain situations, or the interest simply wanes off.

As admirable and beautiful this part of love is, oaths like marriages and so on should be taken seriously.

The "oaths" of the enemy that "only death will do us apart" are constantly violated, with the average Christian having at least 3 marriages and many more affairs. In Spiritual Satanism, one does not have to do it, and when one finally is able to make such oaths, if they are kept, the Gods look upon the people involved with great honors and great esteem.

Now moving from the above subject, we have the subject of the Incubi and Succubi. A lot of people due to sexual lust or needs of love, might go to the Gods and request Succubus or Incubus. Long story short if the level of development is not there, or if there is no patience to lead up to this level, one has a long way to walk, and not everyone is willing or even able to do this at the time being.

Some people will succeed with this, yet others might not. As there can be loss of contact, loss of understanding, or simply the level of development is not there, confusion that is rampant might ensue. This rampant confusion might allow anything from the enemy getting in the middle, impersonations of deities and so on.

I cannot humanely imagine how we reached this place, since most people can hardly create a relationship with another human, yet the claim had to be that Succubi and Incubi are 'accessible' to basically everyone. Now, what is most important than all, is to do a preliminary ritual asking Father Satan and the Gods if you are fit for this [you might know this inside, but you must ask].

The Incubi and Succubi will not be vengeful and will understand if you cause certain problems in the relationship, as they are very wise. But one must not hassle them and waste their time, as on their behalf, they know and see basically "all" about people let alone their respective partner.

Additionally, to have such a bond, certain aspects of sacrifice and tolerance with one's self are required and not everyone has these personality traits. For example, certain people do require a materially existing partner, and would never be satisfied in this form of a relationship.

In the Ancient religions the relationships with Incubi and Succubi were only kept for the top initiates. By top I mean the top of the top, which compared to today, the levels are incomparable.

Now, fringe American nonsense culture of quick sex, drugs and rock and roll, has extrapolated too far with this, a situation that arose from falsehoods in Judaism, which claim that "Everyone can have an incubus" or "The prostitutes of the Demons will come to take your seed" and other nonsense from the Jewish Kabbalah.

Then this nonsense was reversed in Demonolatry and we have the situation of confusion that we have today with 15 year olds dressing as Succubi and so on. The largely sexomaniac American culture of course didn't lose any time from taking this and appropriating this in the Demonolatric culture, and here we go with the Joy of Satan section which is arguably one of the most misunderstood.

The Incubi and Succubi as I have explained before, are Demons and they are very advanced beings. When they are sent to relate to any human being, this is done out of a certain attraction that is in part based on mercy, in part based on the fact they want to help a participant in the spiritual elevation of themselves, and in part because they have been humans too recently and have been sympathizing.

Now I have mentioned the above subject as another very common question is this: When people get in heat, and they want succubi and so on, time might pass and they might recognize that they cannot proceed with this.

In this case, one must make a Ritual explaining the situation [the Gods know this already] and postpone this relationship or explain their situation. One might need to take time to evolve and so on. Especially where very serious relationships are about to be created, one must take time to THINK.

If you do not have the answer that you see [we would know with a little self honesty] let me tell you there are billions and billions of people waiting for you, to love you and to be loved by you. The Gods have power over this and the workings that we have provided can help you even in the most adverse situations.

Therefore, there is nothing really to worry about. Going back to the succubi situation now that has been taken severely out of context.

As if the above was not enough, the above circus American nonsense also generated the false belief that all of this is perfectly feasible by all or that everyone is "Entitled" to this. One has to build up to this level and there are stairs one must climb. As we see in normal human relationships, whether or not people are willing to do this, is literally up to them, and not up to any entitlement.

I have not met a single Westerner who has ever admitted of being wrong in a relationship that they parted with. The psychological issues of entitlement have all of us entitled for love yet so few of us do what is necessitated for it. That's a hidden humor here you can skip this.

Adding a little Zecharia Stichin's mistranslated in the mix, the hyper-immoral and overly sexualized culture of today, many hangups and so on, and modern beliefs about this holy sacrament have become as lesser as they could have been.

Now, to claim that literally otherworldly beings would be interested into this and the flip flop process that so much interests human beings, should be highlighted as being factual only under the serious conditions that I mention. It requires a certain degree of work.

Those of you who have serious relationships with Succubi that you have toiled for, you know what I mean here.

Therefore, let us lastly articulate what is what. There are oaths, that are very serious and are done in front of the Gods. These are important and heavy, and should be treated with utmost seriousness.

Sacraments are also in this category. Lastly, we have promises and promises we make unto ourselves and others. These are very important and are basically what human beings should mostly focus in being reliable about.

Realistically speaking if my cat or my dog could speak to me, they would say they would never shit on the carpet again [but I do not expect them to take an oath as I know the chances are that they will almost definitely shit on the carpet].

Yet, if they gave me this promise and it was kept through for 99.9% of the time, I would be surprised and love my cat, because it would have greatly exceeded all the expectations.

We Spiritual Satanists must not take oaths in vain, and we must seek to make sound promises and follow them through to the best of our ability, and then some. The advancement of this path implies that we are to reach the higher levels, where we become like the immortals, and adopt this level of existence.

But until this, we must behave in the most proper way in this temporal level and do our best to reach this state. Step by step, nothing will be too far above us and beyond our reach.
