

Pandemic and Vaccinations: Future Consequences?

HP Hooded Cobra 666
January 18, 2021

[Hearsync] wrote:

"What's messed up is that the same news report by businessinsider.com says:

"Pfizer said they are investigating the deaths but added that 'the number of incidents so far is not alarming, and in line with expectations.'"

So basically, Pfizer has openly admitted that they were and are expecting deaths to come from their own vaccinations. Don't worry goy, take this vaccination or you will surely die! You might still die from our vaccination, goy, but you have far less risk of dying than if you don't take the needle, goy!"

The argument is that "A percent of people is going to die by the vaccine" but "It's not equal to the people that will die if the Coronavirus spreads". Nobody is going to take any responsibility. Nobody also can tell for certain, despite of claims, what the future ramifications of the vaccine and mRNA vaccinations of humans will have. Or if any.

Currently the claim is that there are none, that it's all ok, and that no matter if one suddenly dies a day after, it was a coincidence. The reverse happens in regards to Co-Vid - anyone who has died WITH Co-vid, has died FROM Co-vid, and is counted as a Co-Vid death.

Clearly, the above is purposeful denial, as there is purposeful denial on the ramifications of the lockdown policies and what these have done to billions worldwide. In short, nobody cares to examine these things and pose the actual question. A little difficult to do, when all the people who have been questioning this, have been removed from the face of the media, or the earth. Another 'coincidence'.

Theoretically speaking, if we are talking about 70% worldwide being vaccinated [number claimed necessary for return to normalcy], we are going to basically have a huge number of casualties. The argument is that these are going to be less than the unbridled pandemic left to its fate.

However, if we are to count all the casualties from all sources of death [such as indirect deaths of people who were killed due to financial reasons, crashes, suicide, domestic murders, what have you], and we add this to the vaccine, not sure which number is going to be bigger in the end.

Let us also add these factors in. Another question mark that hovers about the consequence of this: Birthrates. Europe, has a birthrate problem, well known and caused by the enemy. The strangulation of life, disallowing people to meet in normal social life, and making them into house locked animals, over an extended period of what appears to be years, the neurotic fear and distrust in other human beings that they may be infected, will probably affect birthrates rather negatively.

The situation was already difficult, but this is making it maximum difficulty. In times of financial adversity, modern humans tend to double down on refusing to have children, because of obvious uncertainties that deal with life.

I presume Ms. Merkel, will open the gates of Middle Earth once again, so Europe has a permanent inflow of gifted, PhD bearing, investors, violin virtuoso players, and "I might kill you if you don't believe in Allah and accept Sharia Law" Somali prisoners [fresh from prison] and general terrorists. We all know the ratio of these will be 99% to 1%. The media will say so.

She'll be given a double Kalergi award for this when it's all done. Not only is she crushing the economy, but she halts birthrates to extremes. As about border restrictions that are purported to take place. I'll tell you the real classifications here: if you are totally an invader, you'll pass. You could be carrying bubonic plague and nobody would care.

If your skin is white, you'll be asked a thousand questions and require a thousand vaccination certifications signed personally by Billy Gates himself because you constitute a viral danger. Only to go to the super market probably.

If we also count the financial ramifications of the future, destabilization of the West and what this can mean in the long term, it will all probably say that this decision of such extreme measures was retarded. To the point that this is why people call it a conspiracy. Jewish media pretends they don't understand why. Oh my!

IMO, the vaccine is going to be ineffective [for the long-term especially], the virus will mutate, and maybe we'll just live on with it killing people or in a less fatal form, in a mode of not caring about it anymore. Like we have been doing with the gazillions of deaths yearly by flu and so forth.

As the media today pretends Co-Vid is the only cause of death and the sole one deserving the attention, if their masters tell them to change the rhetoric in that it does not matter, even if 1 billion people died tomorrow, they would have us watching about Kanye West's divorce.

Even if the vaccine proves to not work or proof in the future, nobody will care, unless of course, the enemy has plans to keep restarting all of this insanity of crushing economy and so on until everything goes on a fallout. Another thing they may do, will be to just launch a new CoVid, and keep the meme going in perpetuity until people figure out that it's time to restore their society.

Overall, this period is a period of war between the so called "Globalists" and the "Globe" that they are sitting on. People who ignore this will understand this in the future. By the time this is done, or by the coming years, when people will look back, an extraordinary amount of personal freedoms may be gone, if there is no resistance to this.

Thankfully, there is resistance, and people who ignore everything are not many. Soon, more pressing matters under the Biden Presidency will be forcing people in the US to reconsider. Such as those who currently ignore because of less restrictions compared to the EU.

Given a floating argument exists that unless X amount of people are vaccinated, masks, restrictions, and lockdowns may never end. And the fact that even if people follow suit, they will be free, is arguable. We may have a repeat or continuation of this until people finally decided it's time to stop [or the enemy does].

It all also depends on the Rituals we do, resistance posed by people, and the realistic factors that may disallow the enemy to go forward. At some point, it's all going to be "over", one way or another. The enemy doesn't want this to be over until the product of their extortions is through.

It doesn't matter about health, deaths, casualties, or social ruin to them. It's a necessary "reset" to them, after all. In fact, knowing them, the more deaths that happen out of all the possible causes, it should be fine by them.

Then people will scratch their head and be like, so why did those in power ruin the world exactly? And that's about when people will be really, really angry because they'll understand it wasn't possible to fuck up so much unless one intended it.

© Joy of Satan Ministries

www.joyofsatan.org