

JoS Position on the Vaccine

HP Hooded Cobra 666

August 24, 2021

Over the planet, right now, and especially as Winter approaches, the agenda for the vaccination is going to intensify. Clearly, there are people who are trying to cause massive division. The enemy has been behind numerous cases and situations where they divided peoples as much as that they did civil wars against their own midst.

The efforts of those in power to divide people, must not reach in here. For this reason, we must not as a community follow the trail of their nonsense. We must bear in mind, everyone has different power, levels of freedom, and that circumstances may lead some people to be in advantage during a situation, and others at disadvantage.

Globally, I read in the news, there are terrible things and a lot of fearmongering [still] about this vaccination procedure. Some of it is real, and some of it is fake and bogus. Rights are being thrown in the trash can, and a frenzy of lack of common sense has been generated around the "Vaccine" situation.

Of course, the frenzy is affecting all levels of society. Many people behave as this is the ONLY PROBLEM OF THE UNIVERSE at this point, or try to pretend that the existence of the universe really depends over this shot or something. This is the reason you lose things like Afghanistan, or why I guess we are at risk of a post "Pandemic" economy may go into the grave unexpectedly.

Anyone should suspect that all of this extensive literal barrage for people to adopt this practice, on penalties and serious ramifications, is a wrong thing.

At the same time, we can't do what society does in here, just because society is enforcing this on us. We have to be able to get away from this once in a while.

Society now has been enforcing people to do decisions they don't want at all, and the worst of it, if these decisions that society and many Nations enforce go south or go wrong, they literally allow people in the midst of chaos to fade away.

This is not how Governments should behave. One person wrote how they don't even cover your insurance if you take the vaccine and something goes bad. It is also beyond logic that something without a strong history of experimentation and trial and error, is globally being enforced.

Needless to say, as we have stated before, the very serious ramifications of these are the things that come WITH this practice, not the practice itself. Despite of if it is good or bad, all these are signs of freedom shattering and moving progressively towards an approach that people are animals, and that those in power can literally lock them out of the supermarket from them not doing as they are told.

The undertones of the JWO are as powerful as they ever were, and the outcomes of these observable. It could be that society would be divided over anything else, but it is the case that now this has happened over a so-called Pandemic. They are trying to shatter society, and this should be obvious. This is way beyond the "vaccine" or anything pertaining to health.

A common thing said in television but only frequently used on those against of the Vaccine, is that "They are not qualified to have an opinion" on the vaccine. At the same rate, when people who are against it have an opinion, they are not allowed to speak it.

Logic implies here, that those who also "Recommend taking" the vaccine to people, are equally NOT qualified to give such advice. Therefore, they are at no higher ground than those random people that recommend people to NOT take the vaccine. Both are equally "not qualified" in practical terms, fundamentally speaking.

It's just that the "qualification" that is accepted right now, is the "qualification" of what the "State" or the powers that be want to enforce. Therefore, whomever agrees with this, suddenly is an expert and a virologist. And that whomever disagrees, even if they are a Nobel Prize winner Virologist, they are a "conspiracy nut and bigot".

Even scientists of global renown who disagreed, have been banished from their circles and not allowed to share their views. If they did, they are mocked, harassed by the government, suicides, and other weird occurrences. They could be wrong, and maybe the vaccine would be perfectly fine.

They should be allowed to their opinion, one would normally think, and if their opinion is that wrong, then they will pay the price of the consequence of making a mistake. But they aren't allowed of this. That's apparently too freedom of discourse able, and too much salt and pepper for our mediocre claimed "Democratic society". They could be wrong and all that they say bogus, in theory. Yet, this practice as one can understand, extends past beyond the "Medical" field. It shows that governments are starting to behave like the mafia, and engaging other sectors in society into mass division to levels only applicable in civil warfare.

The jews did this again. They moved the "Christians" against the "Pagans". They create these dilemmas on purpose. In this case, there is no dilemma, one should be a Pagan, because Christianity is foreign. Yet when science is concerned, let alone science that most people don't understand, but this enforced on all layers of society, problems arise very quickly.

One argument I hear from the random governmental plants on the subject, is that people "aren't doctors and therefore cannot choose for themselves". Fair enough. Is let's say Arnold Schwarzenegger a virologist or a doctor? Or is even the governmental plant parroting this opinion? Certainly not.

But clearly, we haven't allowed the answers of this to arise out of the "Scientific Community" anyway in the West. Too much interference. Therefore, the issue became very quickly and too deeply political.

Remember - these people don't really defend your right to "vaccinate and save yourself", but they represent the ultimate power of the state to do as it sees fit. If the question was public health, they would be far laxer and calmer. They, after all, protected themselves with the vaccine.

The undertones the jews are trying to create now, is to blame vaxxers and non vaxxers and get our societies to implode, while it's them that are putting people in front of all the freak level destructive decisions. They are dividing families, making people quarrel, and even kicking people out of their livelihood over this, forcing them to do medical practices.

As one can see, this is going somewhere entirely else than the "Vaccine" itself.

Pointing to an example: In Europe, they are already implementing the "Green Passport". This is a personal QR code that certifies you have got your shot. In most European countries, they enforce people to take the shot to get this passport, EVEN IF THEY HAVE PROVEN THAT THEY HAVE ANTIBODIES FOR THE CO-VID!

Needless to say, it doesn't take much of a brain to see here, that there is no care for the health of anyone, but actually about promoting an agenda with cyberpunk dystopian themes.

In regards to responsibility, for example, even if one dies from the vaccine, what they can claim legally is that the CDC told you in their page, that this vaccine was experimental. Today that changed, and it's no longer there. But for whatever happened prior, nobody would take any responsibility.

Governments and those that recommend, don't take any responsibility for this. That should always make someone raise an eyelid. This clause was there just in case someone sues after severe damage from the vaccine, claiming that they were not informed.

In regards to personal opinion, I am not taking it, yet my situation supports this decision without costing the lives of others. By costing lives, I don't mean from the "Co-Vid" as an illness, but rather work-related situations, family wise and so on etc. I don't agree with how this is forced, and I am in denying mode because I see the greater issues and the agendas of the enemy that codepend on the vaccine.

Therefore, since to me this is not a health question at all at this point, nor if it would be, I would consent to this destruction going on, and they could get the finger. I will not accept as I have never accepted all what they are trying to enforce alongside this "vaccine", so I don't see it as an isolated medical question, because it isn't. It's question of vote of confidence, which affects many other areas of life and seems to march us into darker territories bit by bit. But again, the above I say having accepted the risks.

HPS Shannon has said explicitly "over my dead body" in one of her previous topics, she is not fond of the vaccine either. On the beginning of this craze, I have also asked HPS Maxine and she told me an explicit NO. HPS Maxine has also been extremely knowledgeable in herbs, supplements and all of these things. Many members have said the same.

The striking majority of people here are not taking it. All of this is risk management. Most SS who had the Co-Vid have been past it without lethality or any issues, in most cases, taking it easily as a mild flu. Some had elongated flu that lasted in some cases, even 2-3 weeks.

There have been people who were older, and it was all the same, with a quick recuperation. Only two people have told me it was more difficult for them, but with meditation and proper diet, they have gone through it too without any issues. In their case it took about 2 weeks.

Maybe people here have been luckier than others. Meditation helps a lot with these matters, too.

Despite of the Co-Vid thing, there is also a whole array of other decisions which don't allow a singular line of choice to take place: Different lines of work with people, different measures and laws per nation, different lifestyle, different age etc.

The governments of the world however disregard the differences between human beings, because they act in the jewish mode that they are. This extends further than "Freedom of choice" or "Individualism". How they treat everyone as if they were the same, is wrong.

Therefore, there cannot be a single position from the JoS on this subject.

But information can help people make any such decisions for themselves. We tried through all of this to make sure that everyone was exposed and exposing others to all sorts of information that was being deliberately censored from everywhere else. Everything one read everywhere else, was that this is "safe", "perfect", "absolutely OK" and so on.

However, the same right is denied to people who have doubts or don't want to partake into this. The media and the establishment are not being honest at all. Honesty here should allow for social debate. Given we are in the internet, there is also a lot of overblown negative information, as overblown as the statements from the Governments, but in the other direction.

The internet in this case is far more justice oriented, than it's a place of disinformation. At least it allows other people to exist.

From the beginning we have told everyone to really filter things. There are a lot of lies circulating around. One lie was that people are going to be dropping dead immediately or something. I told you directly in the beginning of this that this was unlikely. This was basically the reflection of some doomsday xians on the subject. These things were mostly from xians and other people who constantly want doomsday to arrive, and how zombie apocalypse is coming anytime now.

Even at the occasion of such plan being in motion, I doubt this would happen as directly and obviously. The death of millions happens yearly in far more obvious manners, and it just flies over people's heads. Governments don't exactly need to do these things that way.

Yet, as Spiritual Satanists, even at the case where let's say this happened, and zombie apocalypse occurred, there is no way the JoS is going to behave as a xian group, that let's say, will gain "Satisfaction" from being right about the suffering of a "segment" of the people here.

In fact, no matter what happens to people, vaccinated or not vaccinated, we will always look at the best of anyone in their respective case. This should be the spirit of the forum. Nobody has to engage here in the external behaviors that the enemy imposes. We want no side to be "right" over the "other" to feel triumph over the dead parts of our very own society or body.

Here despite of any choice people take, the understanding is that it should be the best for them.

Regardless, the danger of stupidity and reckless decision making is present. Those in power loved this, and in their eyes, that is most desirable.

The matter of consent however to these questionable global practices by what appears to be the first attempt of a "global policy" is alarming. To these people the "Vaccinated", don't really represent a people looking for it's health, but rather, they represent different categories that to those in power are to be manipulated and treated like numbers, or future oil in the next plan of the JWO. That is the unfortunate reality. If they looked at humans like people, all of this would have gone way differently in the global policymaking level. Some of these categories are the following:

1. Did consent to them
2. Followed "their news"
3. Did not have hesitancy
4. Those who broke under pressure
5. Those that accept "Global policies".
6. In the eyes of those in power, the "Co-Vid" is being correlated to other things, such as "Climate Change" and other rhetoric that they want a global percent of the population to accept.
7. Those who sold their rights for a low price, saying "Fuck it" and just threw their rights in the trash can
8. Those who are cutthroat and will resist these advances
9. People who might have consented out of excessive pressure or threat of worse damage, and might hate the government as a result, etc.

I could go on and on. These types of people will generally be favored by a global government. In short, none of these people are looking after people's health.

They don't give a fucking shit about what happens to people. Despite of how this turned out, they still wouldn't give a single shit. One has to understand that and do the best for themselves and the best of their ability. We aren't living in a rainbow world with these things going on.

There are also many unverified and unanswered questions. These will be answered only by time, since "Experts" are busy censoring their peers and promoting the idea of PERFECT SAFETY. What is happening in science is truly depressing. I am really depressed over what is going on in the scientific field. If any so called "voices" are heard, they are not allowed in anyway to reach close to any governmental decision-making post, and that is a worldwide phenomenon.

Even lower are the chances that something terrible happened and Governments would "admit it". Nobody would do this, and they would try to weasel their way out like they do with legal statements, over a helpless and uneducated population.

The greater death of science and its replacement with a false, fake science, is a thing Communists did also. According to Communist intellectuals, science shouldn't really exist, but solely to justify the already held preconditioning that Communism wants to implement.

This is why they fell behind terribly and the USSR collapsed. Science was only formulating bogus theories to confuse the people, and not to actually make the existence of humanity better and be at service of looking out for our existence.

All of this "pandemic" has not been treated scientifically, but rather as a political situation. And much of it, smells like a globally emerging Jewish USSR.

Generally as explained above, we are all together in this, but everyone has their own decisions in life or lack thereof. This is one of these subjects where the personal life and choice are really important.

This is why also we have kept repeating in the past, that many will want to join in the last moment but it will be too late. The way things are going, people who know how to meditate, and have considerable power to alter these situations in their own life, will get actually "saved" from much of the damage society might incur on someone.

Others won't be taking this because of personal convictions, others because of health reasons, and others because they simply don't want to go with the whole agenda surrounding it. A person with a severe lung disorder, might reason out they should take it, given anything could send them easily to their death.

Others might have taken or might do so because of compulsory force, without really needing to otherwise or even wanting to.

There is a category of people who is against this but has been wrestled through draconian force or life necessity to admit themselves to a treatment they didn't even want or trust. That is the definition of coercion.

I have not heard of a single case that said they want to take this to "save themselves", as everyone here is more researched than the general masses that only watch TV. Clearly, the level of urgency of the TV is not really present anywhere, but in the moment one opens their TV.

Now, no matter what one has done, there are many supplements like Zinc, Vitamin C and so on, that can help you after you have taken this. We have meditation and magick one can do to offset this or even the cases of the vaccine.

Also, there is a situation where driving the immune system of vaccinated people into overdrive, might affect unvaccinated people. There is no way for me to scientifically verify this. However, even in this case, one should also be able to defend themselves and it would always be safe to take some harmless supplementation.

However, the vaccine itself cannot be overlooked as something by itself, because it's a central topic to a far bigger agenda, which everyone here knows about.

In the end of the day, everyone is a Satanist and one has to look for the best interest of our common gathering. We just want people to be safe, positive and healthy, that is all there is to it. The idea is for all people to try to do their best for their personal situation and interest and with clarified judgement, without compulsion. One chooses for themselves.

In regards to the general case around this subject, this is what is of interest to us and one has to understand the GREATER VIEW around this. We want people to see through this situation, but PAST IT.

In fact, as many people are globally preoccupied with this, one can be certain the enemy is already preparing major upheaval and changes for the next years. All of this, with the coming reforms in global working and financial policies, will look like child's play.

As explained, this is only a stepping stone and a circumstance that reveals other and more important things, which are general and apply to all levels of life. But also, for the future of our society. JWO, Communist undertones in our societies, jewish control and abuse, so many things are becoming apparent. It's these things that the JoS is interested in and takes a stern and unalterable position on.

What remains important is this: For people to understand where this is going, to not lose sight of the enemy, to be ready if needed to fight despite of what might befall one personally, but above all, to develop CONSCIOUSNESS over your own decisions. The Gods have strongly emphasized to me that before. We must show strength of will and CONSCIOUSNESS in our decisions. This decision like any other one, must fall under this.

If one does not have CONSCIOUSNESS of decision, even if one agrees or disagrees here, that is inherently wrong. One decision may cost less than the other, but one has to make sure to try to do the best choices for them. That is important to learn and also to fight the JWO, which always emphasizes the WORST for everyone.

The so-called vaccine that everyone in this world requires, is the vaccine of enlightenment against these beings that bring foulness into this world, chaos, dimness of mind, and shrinking of the human soul and spiritual understanding and freedom.

We must stay aware, keep doing the spiritual warfare, and in understanding of the real virus behind all these spectacles. They will NOT pass.