

Spiritual Satanism: Approaching Satan, Growing in Satanism

HP Hooded Cobra 666

December 12, 2018

Greetings to all of our People and Satanic Comrades.

I think it will be really helpful to have a series that answers, which elaborates, on how one can be a better Spiritual Satanist, grow closer to the Gods, and provide more intense insight on how to go about this. It is great to know of one's enemy, but one needs to know of one's friends in a very elaborate manner, rather than solely focusing on the enemy. One must not forget also that the existence of the enemy is what appears to be temporary, and not forever. 😊

Anyone who has stood on the side of the Gods for a long time and was doing it seriously and with devotion (both in heart and also in action as in meditating and increasing knowledge) they know that the Gods will guide you to what you need to do based on your requests, so you can grow. They will help you. Many people obsess over vision and hearing of the Gods but that is not the most necessary way to receive guidance. You can then be guided instead. I will write more specific things on the next part of this series.

When one takes Satanism seriously, in one or another way, their spiritual and personal power and confidence will increase. This is positive, and also, one will, when beginning with meditation, go through a cleansing process of the soul, which can last for many, many years, depending on the pileup of negativity that is piled up on the soul. Therefore, increasing power should be done also in a sensible power while pushing limits. There are people who neglect soul hygiene and deprogramming from the enemy's dogma which creates a clash in the mind, and this can last for a very long time. Inner problems such as un-reconciled ideas about one's past can come kicking in and always seek justification or re-emerge in new levels of power.

One example here, is if one comes from xianity, or somehow, believes in it still, they can carry a desire with them to 'prove' that they 'were not as wrong' in their prior perception, or try to reverse xianity to fit their new life, or any sort of the two, creating a lot of perceptions that are now useless, but serve only as a broken rope to connect two parts of the mind that are in opposition. This is a psychological process however. This process can take time to break free from, and is keeping one back or slows them down.

The above is not shameful, it is just how the mind works. However, after a point to be still a xian in the mind is shameful, and even dangerous, as one will self-fuck themselves up with the power they possess on their own. So one must relinquish this type of thinking, the faster, the better.

It's better to understand and seek the new light and the new darkness, than to stay back in what is a black hole that has consumed both one's life, and the life of all individuals of this world, and turned it to crap. Imagine if one was sitting by the worst person of all times, serial murderer or child molester, and was trying to impose on them an idea that they are the best sweetheart of the planet. Probably, they will end up in their murder count. This is what xians are trying to do to the hebrew ghouls they believe in.

One must be very careful what things they take in their bags to move on to the next phase of their development, so to say. Everything you hold in your bag will grow aside you yourself. One must take the necessities, and the things they need, and not endless dross that requires evaluation for its uselessness. To give an example, there are even some people who come from another sect of Satanism that does all sorts of practices many of which belong, and tie someone, to the enemy, or klippothic kabbalah or disrespect to the Gods. These have to be left behind.

One has to trust in the process as simply this is useless and the people who seek power from their enemies are just fools. Many of these people should also have mentioned that most of these things pushed by the enemy, are not only temporary and in the end, worthless, but also, stupid. They lead nowhere the life or the individual, just confusion.

Have you ever had this guy in a circle that thinks he knows something, because he did something similar, but completely unrelated to the task at hand? For example, you're in the military, and a guy pops up about how he was going hunting for 25 years so he knows how to use a weapon or something. As far as the military is concerned, you do not know shit, so it's better to sit down and listen. "BUT MUH 25 YEARS OF EXPERIENCE!"

You going hunting doesn't mean you will know how to act in the case of a full-blown war for example. Likewise, past knowledge of 'spirituality' has to be taken with a grain of salt, or be left behind. Maybe the hunter now, knows better aim with shotguns, but that doesn't mean they can fire a ballistic weapon, effectively, in a war formation, with proper cover, and so forth.

Satan and Satanism need to be approached with a clean slate deleted of one's prior experiences or expectations. Due to the nature of the human mind this is can be more or less difficult, and even if it appears so in the surface, the subconscious part of the mind can still hold strongly over modes of thinking which are not Satanic or found upon the new understanding. One cannot hope to deprogram in an instant, but one must do the necessary steps to move on.

To name an example here, many people believe that the Demons or Satan are supposed to be punishers, and if they do something wrong, they believe that they will punish them for these acts. The Gods only punish in serious cases, not because you fail. This mentality is carried over from xianity, where even the most minor mistake can mean a damning in eternal hellfire.

Another example is how people have a hard time letting go of xianity. Many people take this seriously because many people 'believe' in it, and it's weaved into the mind of people for centuries. They consider this system, somewhere in their head, 'important'. Even though it led nobody, nowhere, and only collapses the civilizations over and over again. Against all data and truth, one is somehow stuck over the thing that there is something 'good' there, frequently bathing themselves in shit in order to find a promised gem.

This is sort of like Islam. If one didn't have a past with it, the mere sight of the pedophile prophet that says dumb shit alters them instantly to the uselessness of this religion, at an instant, and one considers it a joke. But to the person whose mind or even soul is brainwashed, one can have a real hard time breaking out of this mental prison, and one can believe that the pedo prophet is somehow a viable source of whatever.

If the above are not left behind, imagine entering a relationship with a new lover, and being fucked up in the head from all your previous relationships. This can only go wrong. Even if your partner is the purest and best in the planet, you yourself will be corrupted and harmed, and as thus, you will need to heal, or you will ruin the relationship.

You'll need to fight your way through with your prior self and juke it out. Sometimes, very hard. So be ready for this, too.

Imagine yourself a bit like Alice [from the classic novel, Alice In Wonderland]. You're entering a new world, and you must learn the new rules. The more strict and severe laws you carry from your prior 'world', the more you will clash with the new world, making you struggle with understanding the new one.

Imagine if we sent a theoretical empiricist theorist to another dimension, they would be shocked, plus, imposition of these gross laws on the next dimension would probably harm them, or delay them from understanding the new dimension of life.

Now that we have understood the above, one will have no problem accepting a reality, that one is not like an all knowing person in this new world. One can be a fast or slower learner, but it doesn't matter. People grow faster or slower but all people become adults. Similarly, one must have patience, and keep on the process of growth. Nothing shameful here. No need to rush or break yourself. Just keep growing.

Essentially one is like a baby and they have to discover a new world. They did not know about it earlier, in this lifetime, and one is bound due to the current system to have other modes of mind that can clash with the newborn perspective of the world. One should rather be empty and blank and not hold very tightly to their past preconceptions, and try to open their mental library for new information. Babies are wise because their minds are blank. They have infinite learning power as a result, rather than the rigidity of the adult mind which thinks it knows everything.

Satan is patient and when one embarks upon this path, the Demons will guide and support someone in their own way, to move forward. This is where one must show trust in the process, and keep going. Of course, during some times, you will feel a sense of hardship (planetary or otherwise), because with the embarking on a new lifestyle, one always bounces back and forces will be at work (many of which of your own making) to keep you from advancing spiritually. So, one must have trust in the Gods to move on past this state with defiance and stability. Then, the enemy too, which will and can be surmounted if you stay on the path. After each development, as all advanced Satanists should know, newer or older, you will see there is something like a checkpoint. You reach a point in understanding that you can never revolve backwards from and get lost again. However, this requires perseverance and stability.

One last thing, is that many people come from backgrounds which are spiritually loose, or let's say, where 'god' is just nonexistent and is just a hearsay hoax. This can create a little situation of shock when one sees some signs from the Gods. Learn to take these and focus on them with logic, and keep growing. This initial state of chaos is going to give place to a serenity of understanding after the soul is cleansed, leading to greater enlightenment as you progress.

Spiritual Satanism is about inner renewal, life, positive change and steady development.