

"Former Jehovah's Witness/Catholic seeking the truth" - HP Cobra Answers

HP Hooded Cobra 666

May 24, 2022

StolenChildhood wrote:

Hello my name is Carlos and I wish to talk about about my life as it's full of strange events and traumas as well as sexual and domestic abuse with a mix of optimism and love for my childhood best friend I wish I could have a conversation with him again one day

Judging for your title, we have to welcome you, and do not feel alone as there are many people here who have underwent similar very evil circumstances in the hands of the enemy. These include sexual and other forms of harassment that come directly from the enemy and their dogma, which as always, abuses human beings without mercy.

We are against them because they are the world's true evil, falsely presenting itself as "good".

I have to also say that I find quite saddening and negative the choice of name you have picked for the account to write your story. Try to read the JoS and see what you can gain from it to improve your inner situation.

StolenChildhood wrote:

Age 5

A bunch of stuff happened to me at this age

My life started in Mexico, being born from a poor toxic and abusive family, my father abandoned me and refused to recognize me as his son, he died on a Car accident when I was 5, my mom cross the border illegally into the USA for work so that she can support me and my other 2 brothers ages 4 and 3 at that time, I was taken care of by my grandmother who never really taken care of us well and instead beat us up any time misbehave, due to her lack of care I ended up in a few near death experiences from small stuff like getting stung by scorpions to one day falling from a tree I was playing on and hitting the back of my head on solid concrete that knock me unconscious and for some reason didn't died of it and recover well at the hospital

In Spiritual Satanism, you must read our main Joy of Satan page. We advocate strongly on justice, to understand the ups and downs of life, but also, we emphasize strongly as meditation and introspection as tools of building out yourself and inner healing. Spiritual Satanism heals from the inside out, and it appears you have lived some pretty terrible circumstances in life.

In Mexico, if I am not mistaken, there are some very hardcore Christians but also many Christian Cults, that effectively make people really brutal, something which is commonly reflected on Children. The false messages of Christianity, reinforce a lot of people to act in even more brutal and close minded manners, which harm other people constantly, with a cycle that never ends.

The Joy of Satan also offers knowledge of astrology and other inner disciplines, so if you decide to join us or consider our information, you can learn astrology and track the sources of this suffering inside your soul and mind, and eliminate these by healing yourself, effectively transforming your life.

There is no punishment, abuse, or attacks for not accepting anything in our religion.

StolenChildhood wrote:

I was a very kind boy, I loved to play tag and other games with kids in my neighborhood, having friends was something of high importance of me since my childhood, at one day the most strangest paranormal event happened to me while still 5... While playing outside with my friends, we were drawing on the side walk and I then stand up, look up into the skies and saw a massive huge white castle in the skies on top of clouds... I was so amazed by this and scream to my friends to come see it which they did too, my little brother and 3 other friends seen this castle as well, the weird thing is that I don't remember what happened next after that and to that day I never seen it ever again, me and my brother to this day still remembers that I we seen this castle, I never got an answer to this, I asked my Jehovah's witnesses teacher who happens to be one of the chosen ones who will go to heaven (some bullshit teachings JW believes that a chosen few will go to heaven and the rest will go to Paradise) but he thought I was crazy and played it off that it was just part of my imagination.. his answer never satisfied me and I know I didn't just imagine this, I know I seen this castle and don't understand why it shown itself to me, a simple happy and humble 5 year old

Certain situations like this can occur because children can sometimes see "astrally" or perceive spiritually parts of the "imagined" realm. It could also have been a spiritual vision that affected you and your friends. These situations can occur, as children also have a very functioning imagination. In other cases, children can literally see the dead or astral entities, and while rare, this definitely can occur.

StolenChildhood wrote:

A few other paranormal events happened as well when I was much older, such as seeing shadows, one time while still being 5, on my room with my 2 brothers whom were sleeping, I saw the shadow of what I seem to be a very old lady sitting on one of those old people's chairs idk what they are called, those types of chairs that moves up and back, she was just there not looking at me and I was very scared and cover myself with a blanket but still peek to keep on watching her, which then she look straight at me, her shadow face just stared right back at me and she completely stopped rocking her chair to which I panic and cover my self with a blanket and started praying to "God" (I was a Catholic at that time) to help me while I was crying, which that was the end of it, I didn't dared to take another peek and I never seen her again too...

It appears you might have seen a ghost, some gifted children can sometimes see ghosts, and it was probably not your imagination either. Generally, these events will be very fleeting in life, because astral sight disappears after a few years in the life of people.

StolenChildhood wrote:

Fast forward at age 14 I had another paranormal event but this one I believe was a simple sleep paralysis attack (I may be wrong tho) it started with a horrible nightmare, at the end of that nightmare I remember swimming on a dark lake on a Forrest at night when something just grabbed one of my legs and drag me down into the water so I can drown, to which I woken up from the nightmare and then I saw a man, the shadow of a man staring straight at me while I was in my bed alone in my room, I never been so terrified ever in my life, I had goosebumps and was not able to move or scream even (I think it was because I was too scared of that shadow) It just stared at me for about 30 seconds and I was just staring back absolutely terrified praying to Jehovah to help me (at the time I was a Jehovah's Witness) to which next he just turn to his left and walk slowly heading to the window in my room which was close, as he walk towards it he just faded into the wall or window and completely disappeared... I couldn't believe my eyes and still was shock and unable to move, after about 5 minutes of crying and praying I managed to get the courage to get up from bed and run out of my room to let my mom know what happened to which I simply said to her "I seen the devil" all terrified.. this was my last time I ever experienced something like this

The above sounds a lot like a negative psychic attack, which can happen by just about any entity in the astral. What is even worse, is that your "prayers" don't seem to have helped at all with this. Most Spiritual Satanists, when we pray to Father Satan or our Guardian Demon, not only we never get any of these most of the time even if we meditate a lot, but any such negative entities flee from us like they have been confronted with spiritual pesticide. What you describe here is also Sleep Paralysis, which can oftentimes come part in parcel with Spiritual Attack.

StolenChildhood wrote:

Now about more into my traumas, I been molested on 3 occasions in my life, once at age 8, 10 and 12 was the final time.

But since age 6 I suffer "extreme domestic abuse" (that's what the judge said) on hands of our drug dealer abusive step dad who made my life, my brothers and my own mom's life a living hell to which I despise my mom for it for allowing us to suffer the abuse for years because she was too afraid to do something about it, which she too was my abuser as well just on a lesser level. My mom control everything from me, she control the way I dress, she didn't even wanted me to date anyone, she forced me to break up with my first girlfriend I ever got when I was a 6th grader... And to make things worse I started having feelings for boys when I was in middle school, and as a Jehovah's witness who they are strongly anti gay, I kept my feelings a secret so I don't be destroyed in Armageddon and lose the opportunity to live forever in Paradise.. this was my way of thinking at that time... This ended up destroying me in the long run.

There is nobody in this universe that hates you because of your sexual tastes or your feelings about others. Regardless, the enemy religions are unaccepting and will attack people for many things, not just what you describe. Repression from sexual relationships, even for boys who are repressed from girls, can sometimes create feelings towards boys. This might come out of repression, or naturally.

Either way, your mother appears to have been severely brainwashed by Jehovah's Witnesses, and many of them are really brutal. Beating their children senseless and doing all sorts of crimes against them, is very frequent, and as if this was not enough, this is not done for any other reason than fear of going into "Hell". In Jehovah's Witnesses, many people are going insane all the time from being forced through innate feelings of deep guilt, that is insurmountable, over things that they feel, think or experience, and there is no acceptance whatsoever.

It's great that you still have the courage after all of this to investigate some further truths about life. You seem to have experienced the maximum manifestation of the evil of the enemy religions, but this was not your fault at all in any rate. You were victimized, and they seek out people to victimize all the time.

This fear they instill in people, breaks one's spirit permanently, but we reassure you it's all total lies. The universe is good and it was not designed by anyone to torment you eternally, nor there is anything so bad with you or your soul that you deserve to be burned eternally. These are all lies.

You aren't going to burn because of your feelings or emotions, so do not worry about this.

StolenChildhood wrote:

My life at home as chaotic, verbal abuse, physical abuse, psychological abuse all in hands of my stepdad and partially on my control freak narcissistic mother, she liked to beat me up with the Irons cable which left marks in my body and she threatened me that if I told anyone about it I would be send to an orphanage and put fear in my mind always, once even the principal and teachers always question me if they hit me which I always denied it and blame it on my cat that my cat scratched me and left marks in my head and hands, etc sadly they never send anyone to investigate... This went on for years

The programs of Christianity generate people who are filled with negative flaws and evil that they do not address. Psychotic beliefs such as eternal punishment, create evil and toxicity in people, who later on take their toll on the soul of kids. But you can heal from all of this as time goes, and you must try to raise your feet out of victimhood status now.

StolenChildhood wrote:

The only true moments of joy I ever had were at school, with friends, when I was with friends I laughed, I enjoyed life, I felt free, I felt I could be myself, even tho I was also getting in trouble because I was the class clown but I didn't care because I was happy.. my only times of joy was thanks to the friends I spend time with and sadly this too was also taken away from me, my step dad was being chased by the DEA who wanted to arrest him since he was member of a very dangerous Mexican cartel that hired him and he work for them here on California, this means I went to 3 different elementary schools, 3 different middle schools and 3 different high schools, this hurt me deeply because every connection I made with friends I loved I ended up losing them due to always moving away, I wasn't even allowed to have a phone, my first phone was a shitty phone I got at age 16, never was able to keep in contact with those who I cared and loved... But what truly changed my life forever was when I went to Hyde Middle school as an 8th grader and I meet this boy name Richard.

Do not feel guilty for what you experienced, because it wasn't your fault as stated above. In regards to your father, poverty and crime, which happen to people because they don't have any hope, tend to breed more of the same misery.

StolenChildhood wrote:

Here is when it gets strange...

You see when I first saw him it was on lunch time, he was 7th grader, I didn't even knew his name but when I saw him I felt a strange force that drawn me towards him, I then just had the thoughts "is this my new best friend?" It was like love at first sight something never in my life and to this day never have I ever experienced.

Time went by and I needed up befriending him, we became the best of friends, I loved hanging out with him, playing catch, messing around with him, I literally loved everything about him, outside of school was misery and chaos but when I was with him, everything was pure joy... I ended up falling with him and here's how it all went downhill soon.

I never confessed my feelings, he was a Christian at the time (now he's Satanic, Joy of Satan to be exact, he's the reason why I'm here in the first place and why I wish to find the truth and establish a deep connection with Satan)

That is a beautiful relationship and it appears you loved him or needed Richard as a friend. Maybe Richard did really like you as a friend but did not really want to be in a relationship in anything more than this. Regardless it appears Richard was a very positive influence in your life.

Maybe you were not really "in love" with him, but severely needed him and felt attracted to him, which can be common when they are such a positive influence in your life.

Yes, this is how people of the JoS would treat you. Oftentimes, nobody would tell you they are of JoS, but it appears that our friend Richard here has treated you very well and given you a gateway to escape misery.

StolenChildhood wrote:

In my mind as an 8th grader at the time, I didn't want him and I to be destroyed so I prayed and prayed and prayed AND PRAYED AND PRAYED AND PRAYED AND PRAYED every single day to Jehovah God to help me kill these feelings I had for him and to forgive me for sinning... I truly loved him and was willing to kill my feelings so that he don't be destroyed in Armageddon due to me, I wanted to live forever in Paradise by his side as best friends, I wanted to be by his side forever and to make him be a Jehovah's Witness too because I was brainwashed into believing that was the truth, and as a good JW kid who went door to door preaching the good news, going to the congregation meetings twice a week, staying out of trouble, etc I truly believed everything they thought me...

Yes, that is because of fear and guilt taking control of you. You wanted these feelings gone because you thought they were evil, but they were really not evil, this is called love and attraction. You wanting to bring him over in Jehovah's Witnesses is because you thought it would be good for him. But if you look at life, it was not good for neither of you. So Richard woke up and he did the best choice to leave this insidious program.

Your feelings are not evil.

StolenChildhood wrote:

For this is why I fear having those feelings for him and for this was why I never told him my true feelings even tho I also knew he also had a crush on me or it felt that way too... Last time I ever saw him was on summer school, I didn't even expected him to be there, I went to summer school for failing Algebra on my 9th grade year and he went for English as an 8th grader, when I saw him out of nowhere, it my best started beating so damn good, like my whole damn body just Shaked and I smiled and we where reunited again, until the day came where it was his last day of school and stupid me didn't even realize it which to this day I hate myself for it because I was planning to give him a hug on the last day of school and was even planning to confess my feelings for him too despite my beliefs, I was madly in love with him... And I never saw him sadly.

Sounds like summer love. It's better to not make assumptions on if it was mutual. Anyhow, Richard planted the seed to help you get out of this mess that was thrown upon you.

StolenChildhood wrote:

He didn't had a phone either, no contact, I was heartbroken for years, it's like something inside had broken down, I never really felt joy from school anymore, it was misery at home and at school since I became a quiet insecure and lonely person, no longer was myself anymore, I was deeply depressed and just kinda kept it to myself when people from my religion tried to help, I always told them I was fine. Fast forward some years as an adult 20 at the time I was searching him up on Facebook and found he made an account, I was extremely happy and checked him out, to which I found he sadly was going through problems himself, he isolated himself, hated his family, etc etc, it was when I found out he became a Satanist, I was shocked, how can someone love Satan? And why my best friend who was like an angel, done this...

Well, Satan is not evil. Satan is about spirituality, meditation, and basically it's the core gathering of knowledge from Ancient Religions we followed before Christianity or Islam, or Jehovah's witnesses.

StolenChildhood wrote:

I wanted to rescue him, I tried my best to stay in contact, all failed, never got a hold of him and to this day I never had a chance to tell him how much I love him and that I miss him so much, I wanted to tell him how religion fucked me up and prevented me from living life, my mom and step dad, religion, etc., they stole my childhood, I ended up committing horrible acts due to my sexual repression, acts that would had never happened if I was allowed to be myself, it's like the bible creates the same monsters it asks us not to be...

Exactly, "The bible creates the same monsters it asks us not to be". This is what the enemy programs do. They create guilt, depression, isolation, evil, and hatred. This is because they mismanage humanity and lie about very basic things, which later on turn human beings evil and insane.

StolenChildhood wrote:

I was corrupted but I remain optimistic, even tho now days I'm suicidal, deeply depressed, I had found a meaning in life and it's though friendship, those friends that made my life so happy who sadly I lost contact with and sadly now days I'm lonely and friendless, at least I still have in my mind those wonderful memories and I wish to keep holding on to the hopes to one day be able to reunite with my best friend Richard...

Maybe you will, maybe not, but what is for sure, Richard too would need some help. If he is a Satanist, he should better not have told others, but it appears he did [as he told to you, effectively giving you a path to be helped] but it appears maybe he is going through difficult circumstances and doesn't want to be bothered. But at least he helped you. It would be a good idea to recognize this freedom for him too.

StolenChildhood wrote:

He changed my life so much, it is due to him that I no longer am a Jehovah's Witness and that I wish to become a Satanist, I wish to form a relationship with Satan, I wish to know the truth, I wish to live a happy life... And I wish to tell my friend that he didn't abandoned me (that's what he sadly thinks and maybe this is why to this day he doesn't wish to get into contact with me) I wish to live this life with a deep relationship with Satan and to overcome my depression and suicidal tendencies, there's a lot more shit that had happened to my life but I still remain optimistic telling myself that the pain is only temporary and that one day I will finally be happy

Whether or not this resolves in the future, just try to do your best for yourself and to heal yourself. Start meditating immediately if you want to join us, deprogramming the mind from negativity, doing positive affirmation, focusing on positive and good things in life. Depression and suicidal tendencies will be overcome especially as you start seeing hope in life again.

StolenChildhood wrote: ↑

Mon May 23, 2022 9:15 am

I'm currently in rock bottom, just trying my best to stay optimistic, I want to find Satan and I need help

And if possible, I wish to know why I seen this castle in the skies, what was it's meaning... Thanks for reading

-Carlos

Wish you great luck in your journey. Maybe this castle in the sky could mean from you that now on, you can too move higher towards heaven rather than earth, away from suffering, and into building a new life. Give it your own interpretation.

<https://www.joyofsatan.org>

© Joy of Satan Ministries

www.joyofsatan.org