

On Eugenics

High Priest Hooded Cobra 666

5 May, 2020

ShadowTheRaven [wrote]:

"Hey Jack,

I have the misfortune of being born nearsighted, yet I have an IQ of 121 and look average in terms of attractiveness, does that mean I need to grab a .500 Smith & Wesson Revolver, the largest ever made, and blow the top half of my head off? Because that seems to be what you're implying, and I know it's about more than physical appearance."

Eugenic alert applies on extreme situations, such as super hereditary illnesses, extreme deformities, major hereditary genetic flaws that are passed down [many may not be hereditary] in your family or some other fatalities that can prevent your offspring from living or are guaranteed to bring a terrible life.

"Do you want to be born with some life crippling illness that has you on the wheelchair at three years old?". No sane person would say yes and choose this to be their life. But there is nobody that can say no to being born, and nobody is born out of their free will in this world. "Do you want to be born with some severe heart condition that will probably kill you by the time you are 30 for no apparent reason?". Clearly, nobody would say yes to this either.

Eugenics comes in to help humans so that these things will not happen, rather than us going entirely blind into the abyss of chance. It doesn't fix everything, but it aims to help on a proactive level.

Clearly, nobody would say yes to such a fate. Hypocritical christians are good with this desecration of life as they want every person who is damned to be kept alive so they feel better than these people, it's a process of psychological cannibalism against people who have been struck mercilessly by natural faults. They feel better against them so they keep them alive for reasons of social cannibalism. "We are better than this down syndromic retard, we are so blessed!".

They just love to keep people in vegetative states alive in order to look at them and feel this feeling that they, "The children of God" are more "fortunate". Christians are also pro giving birth to children of rape, against controlling birth, and of course, don't you dare do an ultrasonic test on your fetus for down syndrome etc.! Let "God" decide! If "God" hands you a total retard, or maybe triplet retards, that is ok goy, you have to raise all three while these are unresponsive in their 30s, and be proud you are carrying this great cross on your back, because your Rabbi said so.

"But shouldn't I be against having to raise triplet down syndromic retards if I can prevent it?", one christian may ask themselves. But one is not a real christian if they don't want this wonderful gift of "God" knocking on their door...They must accept this, verily, to be saved or something. Oy vey...

Of course, adding to the hypocrisy, we have another example. Let's say a person has had a very bad accident where they lost a limb. Of course, xians will oppose all scientific research on cell growth that could potentially heal these people in the future. Since these people are damaged, or they experience disability which is not of press value, xians will generally oppose the healing of these people. Things like "Science is of the Devil" and not giving one damn about people like Veterans, fits in this category. These people may have had accidents, but since they were not "Press value retarded so we can show how philanthropic we are", most of the time these people are discarded and forgotten by the so called "humanist system" of the jews and christians.

But if one is an absolute retard from birth, since they have press value (christians just love to show how much love they have for retards), they might as well get a hearing with the Pope, on which they are kissed in front of millions of the Vatican. It's all about press value and stuff guys don't ask what is going on here. A person befallen by an accident may not even get a pension, but super retards or stillborn jews may get free mansions and millions of treatments. Don't ask me why this is part of the morality of the 21st century and I am not really trying to make sense out of it.

Since people irresponsibly breeding and having children, and enforcing the above future on a child, can happen, this is where "Eugenics" is to come in. This is no different than other forms of "eugenics" such as testing for fatal diseases with ultrasound testing, or other similar tests we already do. Eugenics however takes this all the way in prevention of the birth itself, where proven defects and life damning hereditary diseases can exist.

Health issues can be present and will more than likely always be present, and "Eugenics" is not the magical cure for curing all illnesses, it just rids the gene pool of strong hereditary health problems that have an extremely crippling character. The types of which disallow a person to even live, type of stuff. We already do tests like this such as the Down's syndrome test, which when a child is found with, most parents tend to abort the birth.

Eugenics is not about beating yourself on the wall for having a little health issue or experiencing health issues or certain minor problems, nor about becoming a model of clay, with some strange standards you have to set until you become Michael Jackson out of doing too many surgeries on your nose to the point it becomes removable.

It's not about lamenting that you weren't born a model either, nor it's centered to cause a specific visual appearance as a main concern. It's mainly a health-oriented practice. Intelligence also can be rather strange here, as intelligence is not always a factor entirely hereditary.

You see a lot of people who are clever and can have stupid children, and in general, the birth roulette is not always playing in the most linear way. Great people have given birth to very stupid children and vice versa. This was always known. Also, another situation that emerges, is that "really average and normal" looking people for all respects, give birth to wonderful children, gifted or charismatic, and so forth.

Hereditary disease can be prevented by people being sensible and not having progeny if it's verified the progeny will inherit some life damning illness. Disease in general is part of life and will always exist in some form of another. Weaknesses pertaining to health exist in every natal chart, for more or less, and entirely "perfect" health does not really exist, an example of this being allergies, which otherwise perfectly healthy people still have.

New health problems arise out of new lifestyles, stupid lifestyle choices, or just environmental hazards. For example, getting overweight based on the modern diet is not really showing directly to a genetic or inherent flaw, but rather, a flaw of dietary norms of the century.

Eugenics is to try to prevent and minimize the potential of life crippling things, and having a focused process of breeding with as healthy as possible individuals to produce as healthy as possible offspring. You try to minimize the crap one passes down so that each consecutive generation has less crap to deal with of the hereditary kind. This is not about fraud news claims about "De Nazis wanted everyone to have X eyes and X eyebrows, oy vey. Believe it goyim they will turn us into lampshades if we don't all have a Brad Pitt Jawline!"

Eugenics is highly misunderstood and was made into a LARPing circus. This is largely because billions are generated out of illness and hereditary illness is a large type of shekel grabbing scheme from people who suffer all their life and others make incessant profits out of this.

While Eugenics can aim to specific things or even desirable traits, the major aim is health aims and weeding out dross that human beings could live without. Yes, human beings do not really deserve things like multiple sclerosis or other strange diseases and as a species we can live without these entirely.

Eugenics would theoretically exist for the same exact reason medicine does, to avoid calamity. The difference is, Eugenics tries to act proactively, while medicine acts after the fact. There are always new emerging technological and other applications which will eventually help both in the proactive and 'after the fact' manifestation of illness, to promote health and well-being.

As we progress scientifically, these will be able to even out on both fronts. Of course, many people due to inherent insecurity and so forth, assume this is about some sort of visual model contest, but this is not really related to eugenic practice, just human vanity. Eugenic practice is health oriented not about breeding the ultimate Kim Kardashian or some stupid thing like this.

The roots of this practice are ancient and were practiced for thousands of years, which is why up until this day we have for the most part stable and healthy blueprints on the Gentile races, and not some form of corruptible and falling apart grey species like the shit bag aliens that harass humanity. And this is also why the enemy preaches dysgenics to essentially make the potential worst out of us to come out.

The Greys, if an interjection is allowed here, are only the example of a massively failed species. They become so frail, disturbing, ugly and weak, that this created excessive evil into them, and excessive hatred, to the point that they cannot even exist without some sort of technological support directly embedded into the whole of them as a species. Greys have done so bad with their own genetic pool that it's well known to anyone who has looked into them, that giving regular birth through genitals or spermatic natural ways is impossible anymore for them.

It's no wonder greys and other similar aliens of this gang do give the most deadly advice to mankind in regards to species level choices and what we are to do racially/eugenically/as a species on this planet. They are hellbent focused on destroying our species entirely, and turning us into garbage like they are.

Foolish people who have no clue say that the greys are a "friendly race", but how friendly can this race really be? Humans in general are a very decent race of beings, we can procreate, we generally have freedom, and as far as our image is concerned, we still look lively and good. The greys on the other hand look like a can of rotting worms that takes circles around the galaxies trying to find more beings to oppress and hold hostages.

They have even promoted the idea that full on bastardization of our species or destroying our own brains, or creating destructive technology, is somehow "The Way Forward" for us. They are clearly really hateful of our natural being and natural life. If they experienced linear emotions, one would say that they are definitely extremely jealous and hateful of mankind, even for our ability to do things that we consider trivial, such as sexual union, which the greys do not possess as abilities anymore.

The defiance of the existence of races and other fundamental laws of nature is essentially a fast track route towards dysgenics, as the chances of bad admixtures increase exponentially and it's very highly likely to have unforeseen or unwanted outcomes after a few generations. Within the "tried and tested" general race problems tend to get weeded out on their own, as Gentile races have withstood the test of time for millennia now, and the blueprints are very strong and solid.

To avoid mixing was a universal law in every tribe worldwide, not due to racism but because trying out one's luck or throwing "what makes us, us" into the trash bin, is not a great idea from the standpoint of life. You don't see Eagles mating with Pigeons in some attempt to wash out the "sin of them being eagles".

In the traditional aspect beyond the word "Eugenics", we just have the ancient and old, "Find a healthy and strong husband/wife" type of selection, and a sensible attraction of partners when it is the case to have progeny. Sometimes in the above we also have intelligent, rich, and other desirable qualities which indirectly prove the ability of someone to accumulate specific virtues about them.

This even today exists as it's part of nature, the only difference is, this runs on the background of the mind and without any defined criteria. But the minds of people who want to procreate, always take this in consideration even at an unconscious level, in the level of attraction etc.

Eugenics are not to be trolled on and lied about neither to be feared. Fear about this arose mainly due to jewish lies and fake nerd lies around the subject which caused fear to people about this practice, sort of how the jews lie to people so that they should be scared of everything that is beneficial and natural to them, such as meditation, life, existence, sex and so forth.