For those who are not aware of this story of Odyssey I will relate it to a simple manner.

When Odysseus was traveling to reach his destination, he and his men at some point were going to go past the Island of the Sirens. The Sirens in Greek Mythology were extremely beautiful and desirable, and they would entice anyone that they came in contact with their songs. Upon hearing the songs of these sirens, sailors would go to their Island to see where the "beautiful" sounds came from, and they only found themselves consumed and killed by these Sirens. The Island of the sirens when looked from afar looked beautiful, but when one stepped foot on it, it was filled with skulls, bones, and the remains of dead men. But the Sirens were very strong, and one could not confront their magical powers and physical strength. The only thing one could do in the first place is to never set foot on the Island.

Odysseus having been warned by the Goddesses he would be entering this territory with his men; he gave his men wax to put into their ears. The men did so and they wouldn't hear the songs of the sirens. They didn't know exactly why, but they trusted in Odysseus's judgement, and they obeyed his command. As such they put the wax into their ears. Prior to reaching the Island Odysseus commanded also for his men to tie him completely on the ship so that he wouldn't jump off to go to the Island, but not pluck his own ears. A general of his own ship called "Eurylochos" which means "The Aware and Far Seeing" was in leadership of this process. He motivated the sailors with sign language to continue moving away during their passing from the corrupted Island but due to having wax in the ears, couldn't hear the one tied on the things he shouted later.

When the sail went towards the Island of the Sirens and started hearing their song, Odysseus started shouting "UNTIE ME! UNTIE ME! I command you to UNTIE ME! I beg you to untie me! Let me go to them! How dare you not let me go to them! The sirens are beautiful and good! Let me go right now!".

However, none of the people would hear his complaints or commands. Then after a while the ship went past the Island of the sirens, and when this happened, Eurylochos just untied Odysseus from the ship and they were able to continue to their destination.

Many if not most things of the enemy, on the surface, never sound bad. Why? Because in order to pass down something rotten, you must clothe it beautifully. This is nothing more than the story of the Trojan Horse of Homer. This wisdom is very true to this day, and will be such forever as it was founded upon natural principles.

The enemy in all their ideologies, they have carefully woven them on the exterior to be about 'love', 'peace', and all the related frauds such as 'equality', and other things which sound as higher 'idealism' but they are the grossest ideals generated by the mind of the reptilian humanoid. Many people when they listen to these things, they sound good on the surface. If the politics of decades of jewish politicians that always sound good on the surface, hasn't convinced us of the reality of such yet, let me tell you, this is the reality of a couple thousands of years now.

The enemy wouldn't be able to recruit anyone if they told them the truth about their writings in their face. This would instantly make people cringe, scared, and afraid.

An example of this is multiculturalism. Those who see only the surface just imagine some sort of multiracial utopia where there is no personal or tribal interest, and a 'step into the future', away from the 'ways of the past'. One doesn't want to hurt others due to their racial status as they feel this is a very bad thing to do. They do not want to set any order straight so they want to assimilate the faults of the past into a new and wrong way of the future. This is the song.

The reality of the song is destruction of nations, extermination of races, the jews and radical hajis ruling over you, and the downfall of everything you have created, all while elderly get killed for 5 bucks and people get incapacitated by Machetes in the middle of London, where the greatest grooming gangs lay. Did the Siren tell you about these things in the lyrics or the tune? Of course, it didn't.

Kosher socialism, Marxism, and many other similar ideologies of the jews are clothed in 'humane' garments, which some people fancy. Others have a little more 'humanity' at the surface of them, others do not. Isn't it like xianity is also advertised as the religion of 'love'? As to what it truly is, one finds out later. Actually, one may have to serve them or be about to die in order to understand, like Yuri Bezmenov. When you're about to add to the pile of skulls and bones on the Island of the Sirens, you may get it, and the situation is there is nobody on this Island alive to save you, because maybe you also killed all of them in the process of listening to their sweet song. This is the Song of Communism in the west which the jews have sung for decades.

It sounds like Corrupted Wagner, pretends to be a heroic deed of social change and equality and justice, but in reality, it is just jewish Hava Nagila sung by a subpar Rabbi singer who laughs as you die, by what looks to him like also, a stupid song.

In particular infested sirens never come to visit someone in their true face. The jews don't tell people on their face they want to exterminate them until well recently when they gave up their siren song because it stopped working due to wax, but it's always replaced with another tune. The siren knows songs. Then, one starts lending their ears to the monsters, who, gradually but surely, infest the mind of the receiver with messages that will take a life of their own later.

Upon hearing these kike sirens, one does their bidding. The end results? Destruction. But it all started with the greatest songs of the sirens.

The situation is with the enemy one has to learn when to close their ears. You are not being wise when you open your ears to them to absorb what is essentially corrosive disinformation. There are some people who like the song of the siren so they make excuses to listen to the songs.

Your mind except of 'getting information' should also know the art of putting wax into your ears. When this is done, the Siren will sing the song and tell you you are 'close minded'. But you have wax in the ears you cannot hear that. Also the singing never stops all you have to do is move past it, or remove the wax and get ruined. The choice is really yours.
