

Infinity

In Taoism, which is one of the most ancient religions on earth and part of the ancient Vedic culture, the number ten thousand is the number of "god", which is infinity, and is simply the number ten given a major expression. This is also in Hinduism and the ancient Greek system of Pythagoras, which was Egyptian as well. In the Vedic number system, this is a code. Ten is called Dasa, and anything that is a multiple of ten, such as twenty and on, has the Dasa on it. 100 is ten times ten, and in numerology is the total expression of the power of that number, which is called Satan, which fully spelled out is Satanama. In ancient Vedism, Satanama is the name of the highest God.

Therefore Satanama is the name of God. It is the energy of existence, which is infinite. It is the five elements, which are this. The 8 symbol on its side, the number of infinity, forms a major part of Satan's sigil in the West, but the same sigil is also found in the east in Taosim and also represents the purified soul.

The book of the 5 Rings shows that the Europeans were on top of martial arts. Musashi's method is identical to the western sword style. Musashi also fought with the Shogun's armies against the Jesuit uprising and helped to destroy Christianity in Japan. The Jewsuits fear the Samurai.
